

APPLE CROP IS NOT AFFECTED BY DRY SPELL

York Imperials And Staymans Growing Nicely; Predict A Large Harvest.

CORN HARD HIT, FARMERS STATE

Despite the severe drought that has engulfed all of Adams county for more than a month and the shortage of water in this area, prominent fruit growers of Adams county predict a large crop of good apples this year.

One prominent grower told The Times this morning York Imperials, the largest variety grown here, although sun-scalded to a slight degree, will be clean and large, perhaps surpassing the crop of 1923. The sun-scalding is said to be slight and it is the belief of The Times informant that it may grow out before the crop is harvested.

Staymans, another large variety grown here, will be small, but the crop will be large and good.

Scab Absent

One feature of this year's crop is the absence of scab. Because there has not been a fall of rain, local growers have not had to contend with this pest this year, thus adding to the quality of the crop. When rain does fall, unless it is not too far distant, the Staymans will crack, that is they have a tendency to do so, but if the growers will thin out the apples, the balance of the crop will be fine, according to a large apple grower.

Trees are heavily burdened this year, The Times learns, and growers are urged to thin out their fruit, to save the best portion of the crop.

Most of the growers in Adams county are not alarmed over the apple crop. They are satisfied that if rain falls within a week the best portion of their fruit will be of the finest quality and that the harvest will be a good one. Sixty per cent of the apples grown in Adams county are of the York Imperial variety, twenty per cent are Staymans and the balance is divided among Summer Rambos, Wealthies and Rome Beauties.

With the York Imperials growing nicely, in fine quality, size and shape, despite the long dry spell, growers are unusually optimistic over the coming apple crop.

Corn Hardest Hit

Corn is the hardest hit of farm products. When the tassels are scorched the corn is ruined, local growers declare, and this has been the case here this summer.

Some of the corn crop will be saved if rain falls soon, county farmers assert, but a good portion of the crop has been ruined, thus indicating a shortage of seed corn for next year.

Potatoes are said to be few but large in size. One farmer reported a harvest of 200 bushels per acre. Another said that he had extracted fifty bushels out of a small patch.

Peaches may be affected, but not to the extent that corn is.

A shortage of hay for next year is predicted by some farmers.

NO RAIN SEEN FOR BOROUGH

Wheat Prices Bound Up Five Cents Here Since Wednesday.

The barometer, the instrument that weather men turn to to tell them whether the day is to be fair or inclement, refuses to give Gettysburg good news and as Dr. Henry Stewart, Baltimore street, expressed it today is "still discreetly silent, moving neither one way nor another."

The thermometer was not much more encouraging when it recorded a temperature of 95 degrees at 2 o'clock today. Cloudy weather is believed to be aiding in keeping temperatures lower than those of Monday and Tuesday, although a fall to normal is not expected until a drenching rain ends the drought.

The drought is proving an indirect benefit to local wheat farmers who have not yet disposed of their 1930 bumper crop, while hurting their corn and garden crops. Wheat was quoted at 86 cents here today, an increase of five cents since Wednesday and 13 cents since last week.

WEATHER REPORT

LOCAL GIRL IS WED IN YORK

Miss Hermie Roth Is Bride Of Camp Hill Resident.

Miss Hermie Elizabeth Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Harry Roth, East Middle street, and Martin Brinton Bowman, of Camp Hill, were married this morning in York by the Rev. J. Merrill Williams, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shoap, of Arendtsville, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

Miss Roth has been a teacher in the Camp Hill high school for nine years, and will continue her position for another year. She attended the state teachers' college, Shippensburg, State college and Columbia university.

Mr. Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Bowman, Camp Hill, is a member of the real estate and insurance firm of Brinton, Packer company, Harrisburg.

After the ceremony, the couple left on a wedding-trip to Atlantic City and other places. They will reside at Camp Hill.

FIREMEN MEET IN CONVENTION

Two Companies In County Represented At Shippensburg.

Representatives from the East Berlin and McSherrytown fire companies are attending the 29th annual convention of the Cumberland Valley volunteer firemen's association being held at Shippensburg Wednesday and today.

Charles M. Webb, Shippensburg, was elected president of the organization Wednesday, while the other officers selected were: Gordon DeHart, Chambersburg, first vice president; John Dunn, Winchester, second vice president; J. L. Redman, Harrisburg, third vice president; C. L. Jacobs, Waynesboro, secretary; W. H. Richter, Chambersburg; treasurer, and the Rev. B. F. Blubaugh, Myersville, Maryland, chaplain.

The delegates are attending from 104 volunteer fire companies in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. This morning was devoted to business meetings, while this afternoon a parade of fire equipment from the member companies ended the convention.

Old Spring May Be Used At Hanover

An old spring in McSherrytown, this county, may be used to augment the diminishing water supply of Hanover, it was announced Wednesday afternoon by borough officials seeking new sources for the nearby borough.

The water stream at the spring be found sufficient to warrant and its test prove true, a truck from the Hanover fire company will be used to pump it into the water system.

Large Pump Arrives From Syracuse; Water Firm Answers C. of C. Charges

Begin Installation At Johns' Well; Plan To Clean Out Stream.

CAPACITY IS 150 GALS. A MINUTE

The big pump which will be used to draw water from the deep artesian well on the farm of William Johns on the edge of Gettysburg arrived today from Syracuse New York.

The pump was taken at once to the well and workmen began the work of installation. Officials of the Gettysburg water company estimated that water from the well would not be available before Friday afternoon.

Considerable work is required in setting up the pump and after it is in position all sediment in the well will first be pumped out so that only water is pumped into the main.

Pipe In Well

A pipe 175 feet long was placed in the shaft Wednesday, and water will be lifted from that depth. The well is 335 feet deep and contains more than 280 feet of water. "Pocket" tests of water indicate that it is free from impurities, but the state department of health is taking no chances, and has directed that a chlorination system be installed on the line from the well to the main so that the water receives the same treatment as that pumped from Marsh creek.

The pump has a capacity of 150 gallons per minute, and officials of the water company plan to operate it continuously. A tractor will be used to furnish power for the pump.

Approach Capacity

Water company officials said that although the pump has a capacity of 150 gallons per minute it will be impossible to maintain capacity production from the well owing to mechanical difficulties and slippage. Company officials said they expect to secure about 125 gallons of water a minute from the well every 24 hours, which would give a supply of 180,000 gallons a day.

The big pump was trucked here from Syracuse, leaving the New York city Wednesday morning. Two drivers alternated at the wheel and drove continuously.

When the truck arrived in center square here this morning, and the driver asked where the pump was to be taken half a dozen persons volunteered to show the driver to the Johns farm. Brady M. Sefton, center square barber, jumped upon the truck and personally directed the driver to the Johns farm along Steinwehr avenue.

Crowd Watches Work

Within half an hour almost every person on the street knew that the pump had arrived, and many people went to the well to watch the installation.

The pump is being installed under the direction of an engineer of the United States engineering corporation, New York, which is the operating company for the local water company; I. M. Glace, district engineer for the state department of health; Chester Bell, an inspector for the department, and workmen from the York firm from which the pump was purchased.

300,000 Gallons

As long as the three wells give a total daily output of 300,000 gallons and some water is taken from Marsh creek daily, Gettysburg will not suffer.

Bendersville Girl Wed To Student

Couple Married In Chapel Of Seminary, Dr. Aberly And Dr. Hoover Officiating.

Miss Nita Marguerite Weaner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Weaner, Bendersville, and Edgar Louis Hildebrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis O. Hildebrand, Baltimore, were married at 11 o'clock this morning in the seminary chapel. The Rev. Dr. John Aberly, president of the seminary, and the Rev. Dr. H. D. Hoover officiated. Only the immediate families and a few close friends of the couple were in attendance.

The bride is teacher of the primary grades in Bendersville. Mr. Hildebrand, a second-year student at the Lutheran theological seminary here, was graduated from Gettysburg college and during the summer is supplying the pulpit of a church in Pittsburgh. After the ceremony, a luncheon was served to the wedding party at the Hill coffee shoppe, Chambersburg street, after which the couple left on a wedding trip.

Council To Discuss Water Problem With Representatives Of Four Local Groups.

P. C. Stock, president of council, today announced that he has invited representatives of four local organizations to meet with council at the fire engine house at 7 o'clock this evening to discuss Gettysburg's water situation and, if possible, to formulate a policy for council in its future dealings with the water company.

Mr. Stock said he has invited representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary and Lions' clubs and the fire company to meet with council an hour before its regular meeting.

"Gettysburg is not in position to purchase the water company, if the plan were for sale," Mr. Stock said, "but the town can bring pressure to bear upon owners of the water company to give better service to local residents in periods of extreme drought."

Live Up To Franchise

"We can probably formulate a policy whereby the water company will be made to live up to its franchise and not cause monetary loss, inconvenience and increase the fire hazard here by allowing the water supply to become almost exhausted before steps are taken to find new sources."

Council has filed with the public service commission a complaint against the service of the Gettysburg water company, and plans to lay all the facts at its command before the commission whenever a hearing is scheduled, Mr. Stock said.

According to Mr. Stock, the borough has borrowed almost to its limit and has no additional credit available at present to purchase the water company. Nevertheless, he said council has received offers of support from many local residents pledging aid in any undertaking to prevent a recurrence of the present water shortage.

FINISH SURVEY OF NURSERIES

214.5 Acres Devoted To Business In Adams County In 1929.

There were 214.5 acres of land in Adams county devoted to the production of nursery plants in 1929, it was revealed today by a survey made by L. H. Wible, bureau of statistics, State Department of Agriculture. This area produced nursery stock valued at $30,760 in that year.

Reports were received in the survey from 477 of the 478 nurseries in Pennsylvania. These 277 nurseries reported 7521 acres of land, valued at $4,466,883, owned for nursery purposes. In addition, 1135 acres of land is rented, the annual rental being $21,368.

The reports indicated that 4713 acres were planted in nursery stock and that this stock had estimated value of $5,037,197. The equipment necessary for the operation was worth $651,906.

The output in 1929 from the 277 nurseries totaled $4,152,546, of which approximately two-thirds represented products sold in Pennsylvania, the remainder going to other states and countries.

Fruit Trees Less

One of the significant facts revealed by the survey, Wible said, is the extent to which ornamental trees and plants have replaced fruit trees. Not many years ago, nurseries were made up largely of fruit trees but now only 7 per cent of the stock consists of fruit trees and only 15 per cent small fruits, while 78 per cent consists of ornamental trees and plants.

On the basis of the 77 reports it is estimated that the value of nursery stock "in the ground" for all the nurseries in Pennsylvania approximated $7,500,000 in 1929 and that the total output for the year was between $5,500,000 and $6,000,000.

Reservoir Enough For Borough Is Answer Of Local Water Co.

C. OF C. WANTS LARGER RESERVE

Copies of the answer of the Gettysburg water company to the complaint filed with the public service commission by the Chamber of Commerce relative to the company providing an adequate supply of water for the town during periods of extreme drought, such as the present, were received today.

After denying that the water company has "neglected and refused" to maintain a service which is "reasonably adequate and sufficient under ordinary circumstances," the company's answer sets forth the following items, in defense:

Reservoir Enough

"That the reservoir with a capacity of one million gallons is, in ordinary weather, sufficient for the requirements of the borough of Gettysburg."

"That Marsh creek, in ordinary weather, furnished a sufficient supply of water for the needs of the consumers in the borough of Gettysburg, but that because of the unusual and unprecedented drought existing throughout the current summer, the supply has been depleted."

"The respondent has, therefore, to the best of its ability, endeavored to develop other sources of supply, and is now tapping certain wells which have heretofore been unused for the ordinary requirements of the company."

"That the respondent is engaging in laying one thousand feet of six inch pipe; in installing auxiliary pumps; is preparing and cleaning the auxiliary wells heretofore mentioned, all of which would provide the additional water necessary to meet the requirements of the community."

"That the respondent has done everything in its power to develop and conserve its resources available for the use of the borough of Gettysburg, and that only because of the unusual weather conditions has it been required to ask for a curtailment of the use of water."

Ordinary Weather

Commenting upon the answer of the company, sworn to by C. H. Bishop, Harrisburg, divisional manager, officials of the Chamber of Commerce pointed out that the company is basing its defense upon what it has been doing "in ordinary weather."

"The company wants the people of Gettysburg to receive the impression that it is doing everything possible now to relieve a situation that should not have been allowed to occur," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

"The Chamber of Commerce wants the water company to give not only a minimum of service in ordinary weather but to provide an adequate and reasonable supply of water for periods of drought such as the present."

"Several years ago when the water company was owned locally, plans were under way for the company to erect a retaining dam in Marsh creek which could be used in periods of extreme drought, but after a foreign corporation bought out the company, the plan was abandoned."

Three Sisters Killed; Train Hits Auto

Lilly School Teachers Die At Grade Crossing On Way Home From Vacation.

Pleasantville, N. J., Aug. 7 (AP)—Three sisters of Lilly, Pennsylvania, school teachers in western Pennsylvania, were killed at English creek crossing near here today when their automobile was struck by a Reading railroad train. They were:

Ursula B. Ryan, 26, Agnes S. Ryan, 24, Helen C. Ryan, 21.

The sisters were on their way home from a vacation in Atlantic City and had taken a short cut. They were unable to get a view of the approaching train until they were within 25 feet of the crossing.

CHARLES NULL HELD IN THEFT

Boy Accused In Death Of Father Is In Trouble Again.

Charles J. Null, Jr., 20, East Berlin, was arrested by Corporal Harnois and Constable Aughinbaugh at noon today after articles alleged to have been stolen from the home of Louis Harman, East Berlin, were found in his home.

Null was tried in the county courts here four years ago for slaying his father on November 13, 1926. He was tried in court here and freed of the charge of murder and placed under the charge of a guardian. He was also convicted of a charge of larceny on October 24, 1928.

State police went to the J. M. Glassburner residence late today, where the youth lives with his mother, and found, in addition to articles which Harman claims as his own, 154 bottles of home brew, three gallons of alleged moonshine and a washboiler still. State police will charge the youth with breaking and entering, larceny, possession of liquor and manufacture of liquor. Glassburner was also taken into custody.

While Lewis S. Harman, East Berlin R. 1, was at work with a state highway construction crew, Wednesday, a burglar entered his home and stole two guns and clothing valued at $75. Harman lives alone and worked from 6 o'clock Wednesday morning until 6 o'clock in the evening.

Included in the loot were a double-barrel shot gun, a rifle, two coats, three pairs of trousers, two caps and a sheep-lined coat.

Entrance to the place was gained through a window. Footprints on the ground outside the window are the only clue to the identity of the intruder.

NO RELIEF SEEN FROM DROUGHT

Heavy Downpour Needed To Repair Damage Done Crops.

Harrisburg, Aug. 7 (AP)—No relief from the drought is in sight.

The partly cloudy condition forecast for some parts of the state was expected to do little more than help in keeping down the temperature. The few scattered showers which may come up in some sections late today probably will be negligible for farm observers seem agreed that only a heavy downpour can repair the damage already done.

Mild winds yesterday in most of the state brought relief from the torrid temperatures although the mercury had reached 10 degrees above normal for this time of year.

The department of health said that water shortage conditions throughout the state had been relieved by the tapping of emergency supplies. At Hanover, one of the areas most seriously affected, 2,000,000 gallons were taken from a private lake to help out.

Emergency supplies were tapped in at least dozen other communities and that many other towns were surveying sources for securing additional water which will be needed soon.

No new forest fires were reported today and there were still approximately 75 smoldering or burning fires in the state.

South Mountain Fair Abandoned This Year Because of Drought

Executive Committee Calls Off Sixth Annual Exposition Of Farm Products Due To Extensive Dry Spell; Arrangements Are Held Over For Next Year's Event.

WATER SITUATION IS GIVEN AS ANOTHER REASON BY COMMITTEE

The sixth annual South Mountain fair has been called off. Because of the protracted drought, extending over a period of more than 35 days, which would detract from the nature and size of the many exhibits and cause a decrease in their number, the executive committee decided that it would be to the best interest of the entire community to postpone the exposition this year. This announcement was made this morning by A. D. Sheely, secretary of the executive committee.

Studied Problem

The committee has been in session several times during the past ten days, deliberating on the advisability of postponing the fair this year. Some members of the committee felt that the exposition should be held because of the extensive arrangements and announcements, while others felt that it would be to the best interests of all concerned to abandon the proposition for this year.

TWO REPORTERS SOLVE SLAYING

Texas Police Hold Spouse Of Woman Killed By Auto Blast.

Amarillo, Texas, Aug. 7 (AP)—Incriminating evidence discovered by two newspaper men caused the filing of a murder charge Wednesday against A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, whose wife was killed when the family automobile was blown to pieces by an infernal machine here June 27.

Payne, arrested Tuesday night after Mrs. Verona Thompson, formerly his secretary, had signed a statement, indicating his infatuation for her provided the motive for plotting his wife's death, was held in the county jail at Stinnett. He was taken there as a precautionary measure. Feeling against the man who had once been known by his neighbors as a "model husband," prompted his removal from Amarillo.

Letters Evidence
When arrested Payne had on his person two penciled letters ready for mailing to the sheriff and chief of police, purported to be from safe-blowers who were confessing that they had placed the explosives in the Payne automobile by mistake the night before the explosion.

A. D. Payne, Jr., 9, who was riding with his mother when the car blew up, was permanently maimed by the blast.

Mrs. Thompson told officer Payne had made love to her and when she protested she could not encourage his attentions because of his family he told her he could "fix that." She said they had gone on trips together.

Evidence against Payne was gathered by A. B. MacDonald, reporter for the Kansas City Star, and Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo News-Globe. Howe asked the Star to assist in the investigation after Payne visited him and complained a thorough effort had not been made to solve the mystery of the explosion.

DROUGHT STUDY GETS UNDERWAY

Robinson Urges Use Of Farm Board Funds To Aid Stricken Areas.

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)—As the weather bureau issued its weekly report showing an intensification of the drought which is parching most of the farms east of the Rockies, the administration Wednesday began mobilizing its forces to relieve the acute distress the dry weather is causing in the central farming regions.

President Hoover, who announced Tuesday that he had asked the railroads to study the needs of the situation in the way of transportation, received from railway executives assurances that the carriers stood ready to assist in any movement of commodities that might become necessary to alleviate suffering.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who has been speaking in the west in the interest of the wheat acreage reduction campaign, has canceled his engagements and started back to Washington to take charge of the detailed study the president has requested the department of agriculture to make into the effects of the prolonged dry weather.

A possibility that the federal farm board might throw its resources into the scale in behalf of the distressed farmers was seen when Senator Joseph E. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, telegraphed President Hoover suggesting that the balance of the farm board's $500,000 revolving fund be used for emergency relief operations in the drought-stricken areas.

It was learned at the farm relief offices that approximately $102,000 remains in the revolving fund and would be available in the event the president decides to take the step recommended by the Arkansas senator. Mr. Robinson advised President Hoover that he would stand ready to lead a movement in congress to appropriate to the farm board any amounts that might be expended from the revolving fund for relief operations.

CAPE COD AREA WOODS ABLAZE

1,000 Men Muster In To Fight Fire Menace Near Plymouth, Mass.

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP)—The shoulder of Cape Cod was ablaze Wednesday night, thirty-five miles of it, with the silver thread of the Cape Cod canal running between the dull red flames of the two worst forest fires the Cape has known in many years.

Plymouth, where the Pilgrims landed and made a place among the Red Men, mustered one thousand men to fight the new red menace, which was sweeping back toward the village itself after burning uncontrolled for thirty-six hours. At six o'clock Wednesday night the alarm bell was rung to summon every available able-bodied citizen.

The blackened, burning circle south of here, ever widening despite back fires, trenches, and long lines of men with chemicals, brooms and shovels, had caught houses, cottages and camps in its destructive reach and was spreading through the long pond section.

Women Win While Spouses Are In Jail

Wallace, Idaho, Aug. 7 (AP)—Two women whose husbands are serving prison sentences for violating prohibition appeared Wednesday to have been nominated to succeed their imprisoned mates in county offices here.

On the face of primary election returns Mrs. E. Weniger, wife of the former county sheriff, received the Democratic nomination to succeed her husband, while Mrs. W. H. Herrick, wife of the former county assessor, won the Republican nomination for assessor.

Millionaire's Son Dies In Plane Crash

Cleveland, Aug. 7 (AP)—Joseph E. Kundtz, 26, son of Theodore Kundtz, millionaire Cleveland furniture manufacturer, was killed late Tuesday in an airplane crash near Cleveland airport. He was said to have been piloting the plane.

Witnesses said they saw a passenger leap from the plane and land safely by parachute.

KECKLER REUNION

The reunion of the Keckler family was held at Arendtsville park Sunday afternoon, 200 persons attending. At a business session, the following officers were elected: C. B. Keckler, president; C. D. Arendt, vice president; H. J. Clevenger, secretary, and E. G. Bonebrake, treasurer.

CHRISTENS SHIP

Camden, Aug. 7 (AP)—The steamship Excalibur, built for the American Export steamship company, was christened by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the president, as it was launched Tuesday from the New York shipbuilding company yards here.

Twelve Die In Riots In Northwest India

London, Aug. 7 (AP)—Karachi dispatches to the Daily Herald report that twelve persons were killed and 150 injured during an outbreak of communal rioting Tuesday night at Sukkur, Northwestern India.

Police fired into a crowd of fighting Hindus and Moslems. Communal rioting broke out at Sukkur Monday. It is unknown how many of the casualties were due to the bullets of the police.

Two hundred were arrested. Two companies of Indian troops have been sent to Sukkur from Hyderabad, and the commissioner of the Sind district is on his way there.

EX-ATTORNEY STARTLES COURT

Says Billings, Mooney Were Members Of Blasters' Gang.

San Francisco, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ed Cunha, deputy prosecutor during the trials of Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney for the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing here, threw the California Supreme Court hearing on Billings' pardon application into an uproar Wednesday by asserting Mooney and Billings were members of a gang of "blasters."

Cunha asserted the gang planned to stop the parade by bombing it, and said he had evidence to show Mooney engineered the plan and both Mooney and Billings admitted it.

Cunha added consequently they "were guilty under the criminal code of California and their pardon application could not be considered."

The former prosecutor charged Alexander Berkman, editor of an alleged radical newspaper, presided over the gang. This brought Edwin McKenzie, attorney of Billings, to his feet shouting and court was recessed for lunch without giving Cunha an opportunity to explain.

Cunha also said Billings had admitted to him he had only told "part of his story" of the bombing, which killed ten persons and injured forty.

This brought the demand from McKenzie that Billings be brought to court immediately from Folsom Prison to hear and answer the testimony.

Chief Justice Waste announced serious doubt had arisen as to the authority of the court to bring Billings here and that the court and witnesses may go to Folsom Prison to hear the prisoner.

Cunha also charged Billings had lived in the same rooming house operated by the same landlady as the McNamara brothers, convicted of bombing the Los Angeles Times Building twenty years ago.

Arrest Ex-Member Of Congress At Still

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP)—Manuel Herrick, a former representative from Oklahoma, was arrested today by prohibition agents on a charge of operating a still.

Officers who made the arrest said Herrick was operating the still at the time of his arrest. He was taken to Baltimore and placed in jail pending a hearing. Herrick, a farmer and cattle raiser in Oklahoma, was elected to congress in 1920. He was defeated for renomination in 1922 but in his two years here his eccentricities kept him before the public.

Officers who took the former congressman into custody said he was living alone in a one room shack near the still and had been working as a boiler tender and utility man at a nearby mill for $15 a week.

fer from a lack of water unless the headwaters of Marsh creek fall should the drought continue unabated.

The town's normal consumption of water, with industries running, is about 700,000 gallons a day. Under the present restricted use of water, the town has been using about 400,000 gallons of water daily.

The reservoir has been kept at capacity without difficulty. On Wednesday, the pumps at the pumping station worked for more than nine hours when the water was allowed to run down to the water company dam. Now that all available dams on the stream have been opened the water company pumps will be able to function only so long as water is above the intake pipe at the pumping station.

Conservation Necessary
Should the drought continue and the springs in the South mountains fail to replenish the water in Marsh creek, the town will be forced to rely solely on the water from the three wells, water company officials said, adding that conservation is still obligatory upon consumers.

With practically no water in Marsh creek from the pumping company dam to Marsh Creek Heights, local fishermen are endeavoring to save the bass and sun fish in the shallow pools from destruction. During the past several days between 3,000 and 5,000 bass and sun fish, of various lengths, were taken from rapidly dwindling pools and placed in deeper water near Marsh Creek Heights. Thousands of dead fish were found by the group of local residents who volunteered to help save the finny tribe.

DISREGARD FOUL PLAY THEORY IN DEATHS

Hagerstown—Rumors of arson in the death of Joseph Davis, 59, and his wife, Allie, 53, were discarded Tuesday by Allegany county officials when they blamed the double death on accident and held no inquest necessary.

Coroner Joseph B. Finan gave the official finding after he, with State Attorney William A. Huster returned from the little town of Kifer, 30 miles east of Cumberland in an inaccessible part of the county where they went Monday to investigate the finding of the charred bodies of the two on the springs of a bed in the ruins of their home.

GRASS FIRE ENDANGERS HOMES IN CHAMBERSBURG

Chambersburg—Residences on the south side of Catharine street and the home and buildings at the farm of Charles Bender were menaced by a grass fire Tuesday afternoon that burned over 35 acres on the Bender farm.

The fire was said to have started from a fire built by a group of boys playing in what is known as Long Lane on the southern extremity of the Bender tract. Fire Chief Val Vanderau did double duty directing the work of the firemen and investigating the source of the blaze and as a result secured the names of several youths who were said to have knowledge of the origin of the fire.

WOMAN BITTEN BY COOPERHEAD TUESDAY

Waynesboro—Mrs. J. J. Carmack was bitten by a copperhead snake about 11:30 Tuesday morning when engaged in outdoor work at her home near Rouzerville. Mrs. Carmack was working with a brood of young chicks when the reptile, unseen by her, inflicted two bites on her left leg below the knee. A physician was summoned and administered aid.

PASTOR OVERCOME FIGHTING SMALL FIRE

Waynesboro—The Rev. Archie Bayers, of Rouzerville, was overcome by smoke Monday afternoon while assisting in fighting a grass field fire at his farm, near Rouzerville.

An alarm was sent to the community pumper here at 3 p. m. The fire, which spread over nearly 10 acres, firemen estimate, was extinguished by dampened sacks and bags. The booster tank of the pumper also was emptied.

The Rev. Mr. Bayers had been burning brush near the stubble field when a puff of wind carried sparks into the adjoining field. The dry grass and stubbles ignited rapidly.

START SUIT TO STOP MAN SELLING OIL

York—A suit in equity, in which Crew Levie company is the plaintiff, and W. D. Vedder, Jr., Roosevelt Garage and Supply company, and Samuel H. Shipley, its president, defendants, was started in the local court Tuesday.

According to the plaintiff's bill in equity, filed by Attorney George Hay Kain, counsel for the Crew Levie company, Vedder, who conducted business in York county as the Vedder Oil company, sold his business to the Crew Levie concern on April 9, 1929, and entered into an agreement to neither directly nor indirectly engage in the business of distributing petroleum or its products in the county of York for a period of five years.

Await Arrival Of British Crown Heir

Glamis, Scotland, Aug. 7 (AP)—The huge pile of gray stones, which is Glamis Castle, holds the secret that all England is waiting to hear—whether the Duchess of York, daughter-in-law of King George and Queen Mary, will present the country a new heir to the throne or another princess. If the child is a girl she would follow little Princess Elizabeth in the royal line of succession, whereas a boy would be in the direct line.

The arrival of the home secretary, J. R. Clynes heightened the tension of this quiet Scottish countryside. Clynes, who will officially take note of the birth of the child which is in line for the British crown, is staying at Airlie castle. This castle is the home of the dowager Countess Airlie, eight miles from Glamis and a speedy motor car has been prepared to carry the chronicler of the historic event to Glamis castle at a moment's notice. Special arrangements have been made to send the news to the king and queen, who are on holiday aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert in Cowes Roads.

Surgeon Falls Dead During Operation

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 7 (AP)—Dr. T. H. Williams was completing a Caesarian operation in a hospital here Tuesday.

Turning suddenly to Dr. R. M. Coston, he gasped, "Doctor, take care of my patient," and fell dead.

DAGGER

By Mary Dahlberg

SYNOPSIS: Rescued from some Mexican insurgents by Dagger Marley, youthful Texas girl, Blaine Howard, American adventurer, arouses the love of his rescuer. Dagger is heartbroken when Howard is reported killed on the Western Front in France. Later she meets Captain John Vaneering, flying ace, and marries him just before he returns to the front, where he is wounded. Vaneering comes home after the Armistice, broken by heavy drinking, and unable to take up any useful pursuit. Renewed pleadings by Dagger finally win him to promise reform, but the same day he is killed in an airplane crash. Dagger is invited to France to visit Dick Welling, an old friend of her ranch days, who is now an English lord, and has married Blaine Howard's widow, Emily. In the midst of her mourning for Vaneering she finds herself still thinking of Howard, her first love.

Chapter 21

OFF TO SEE THE WORLD

When the Eiffel Tower loomed in the distance, and from the boat train windows Dagger glimpsed the sprawling roofs of Paris, silhouetted dimly against the misty winter sky, her heart pounded with an exquisite excitement. She was on the verge of a new adventure. She experienced once more the sensation of having terminated a phase of her life.

Everything thrilled her: the dingy Gare St. Lazaire, the porters who scampered alongside the slow-moving train, the vivid gestures and speech of the descending passengers, the pompous demeanor of the railroad officials. Walking slowly with Marie behind the porter who trundled her luggage, she bent an eager eye upon the throng outside the barrier. Ah, there he was! Dear Dick! A little stouter, and oddly conventional in his well-cut civilian clothes. He sighted her at the same moment, and his one arm went up in a gesture of greeting.

"Dear old thing," he welcomed her. "It's immense to see you. Emily wanted to come, but she thought—the first time—"

"That was understanding of her, Dick. I think I'm going to love her."

"You will," he predicted. "She's sweet. Taken the gaff, herself, y'know—knows what a beatin' you've had. All both of us want to do is just make you happy."

"If you'll try, you two, I'm sure you'll make me happy." And after a pause Dagger went on: "I do so want to be happy, Dick. I feel the way I used to when Convent was out, and I'd come home to the ranch. Do you remember? How you and Uncle Jim would sit up with me that first night, and drink Bourbon, and tell me what had happened? Well, I want to sit late tonight, and—"

"Not drink Bourbon in Paris," interjected Dick. "Fin Champagne, maybe—And by the way, I've taken a suite for you at the Meurice. Hop in here; we'll send your maid with the luggage."

Dick let her be for several minutes, then continued:

"I know how things were with you—saw it from the way you wrote—not what you said, y'know, but what you don't. And I heard from friends about Vaneering. A good chap, but wild. Not that I blame him, dear. Flyin' took something out of the lads; they got to be cynical, too objective; life was more or less of an incidental thing, not important, if you get me."

Dagger drew a glove from her left hand, and offered it for his inspection—her third finger was bare of any ring.

"You see?" she said. "I took it off before I left New York. I've sometimes wondered if that ring wasn't symbolical of us. We were married in such a hurry that we had to buy it from the funny, old justice who performed the ceremony. That wasn't very sensible, was it, Dick?"

"No," he admitted gravely; "but you young people weren't partial to sense during the war. And I suppose—" He hesitated—"well, it was a swing-back—from the other thing, eh?"

Dagger's eyes remained fastened on that ringless white finger.

"I don't know," she answered at last. "He reminded me of Blaine—not that they were really alike. And he was like Blaine, again, because he could do something I wanted to do much better than I could. Only—only—Dick, this is a cheap thing to say; Jack's dead, and—but I'm going to say it. He simply wasn't in Blaine's class. Blaine was stronger than I; he could do lots of things better than I. Jack wasn't nearly so strong as I am, and the one thing he could do better was flying. But nothing that I say is by way of excuse. For what I did I was responsible, and if I had to pay for it I deserved it."

"The debt's wiped out," replied Dick. "Main thing is to start you off straight on the next lap, what?"

The taxi spun around a corner into the Rue de Rivoli, and the glare of the street-lights momentarily flooded its interior. Dick leaned toward Dagger, studying the features so harshly exposed.

"Good lord, you look about twenty," he exclaimed.

"That's all I am. But I seem to have lived ages more than other girls."

"To be sure, but most girls of your age haven't begun to live. You're on the threshold of life, Dagger. You've scarcely sampled what it has to offer."

The taxi ground to a stop in front of the portico of the Meurice. She hugged his arm as they entered the marble lobby, and her eyes wandered appreciatively over the varied contents of the glittering showcases which rimmed the walls.

"How delightful," she exclaimed. "This is what I expected Paris to be. I shall go out and buy and buy—oh, everything. I am glad I'm alive, Dick."

"The inevitable woman," laughed Dick. "You succumb to the first lure which meets your eye."

They reached the desk, and there was much bowing of managers and assistant managers, scurrying of clerks and deferential attempts to convince Dagger that she was quite the most important personage in Paris that night.

Dick said goodbye as soon as her registration had been attended to. "Shan't keep you," he explained. "You're coming out to dine with me at Neuilly. The car will be here for you at eight-thirty. So long, old thing."

The assistant manager stood aside with a low bow as he ushered her into her suite.

"Madame's friends have not forgotten her," he said, smiling.

Dagger paused in the doorway, her lips parted in a long "O-oooh!" of surprise. For the salon was a bower of flowers; tables held boxes of cigarettes and candy, and books and magazines were scattered here and there.

"Just like Dick," was her first thought.

Then her attention was attracted by a heap of orchids in a vase on the center table, and as she approached eagerly to examine them, the manager added:

"Ah, but I had forgotten Monsieur le Duc."

Beside the orchids lay an envelope. She opened it, and a card tumbled forth with the stiff sheet of notepaper. On the card were two lines of engraving:

Duc de Pontoise

Faubourg St. Honore

"Chere Madame," she translated

"Chere Madame," she translated slowly, "will you be so gracious as to accept this slight offering from one who knew and admired your late husband, who fought so gallantly for my France? We, to whom the war is yet near, shall never fail to treasure the services of those who came to our aid before their own country was ready to do so. Also, and in a more personal sense, he, and those like him, justified one's faith in the responsibility of the well-born. It is good to be assured that the canaille shall not inherit the earth."

With assurances of esteem, chere Madame,

"Raoul de Senac."

A flush spread gradually over Dagger's face as she read. Here was a tribute to Jack she had never dreamed of his deserving, and her sense of justice was outraged that she should have withheld it from him. Her feeling almost of humiliation was intensified when the attendant hotel manager, mistaking her evidence of confusion, murmured sympathetically:

"Monsieur le Duc is one of our great generals, Madame. All France is proud of him."

"He writes of my husband, Monsieur, who fought for France."

The Frenchman bent his supple back.

"But all know of Monsieur Vaneering, the ace, Madame. He was well-loved. Many times I have had the honor to receive him here."

It seemed to Dagger that she must choke with strangled emotion.

"I thank you, Monsieur. If I have need of anything—"

He bowed again understandingly.

"But certainly, Madame. We are determined that you shall be content with us. You have but to speak your wishes."

In tomorrow's chapter Dagger meets Blaine Howard's widow, now Dick Welling's wife, and whom she had hated jealously when she first fell in love with Howard in Texas.

FOREIGN POWERS SEND GUNBOATS

China Waters Patrolled By Warships Of Many Nations.

Shanghai, Aug. 7 (AP).—Aroused by further outrages against foreigners in China by bandit-Communist armies, foreign governments Tuesday ordered additional warships to proceed up the Yangtze river to reinforce eleven gunboats at Hangchow and five at Changsha.

Nationalist military reports said all forces the government could muster were being dispatched to Honan and Shantung provinces in an effort to halt the Northern rebel alliance drive.

Troops Mobilized
Upwards of 30,000 Nationalists have arrived at Tsingtao, Shantung, from Canton, Southern China, to be hurried into line against the Northerners along the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu Railway.

A government dispatch from Nanking said Hunan provincial troops had reentered Changsha, looted by Reds. This report was received here with great reserve.

Sailors Wounded
The American gunboat Luzon arrived at Hankow Tuesday, prepared to aid the U. S. S. Palos, aboard which five sailors were wounded in two clashes with Reds recently while protecting foreigners.

Leaving Sasebo, Japan, for Shanghai, four Japanese destroyers were rushing to join others in the Yangtze patrol.

Actress Is Gored By Bull In Mexican Ring

Monterey, Mexico, Aug. 7 (AP).—Celia Montalvan, a pretty Mexican actress, was gored by a bull in the local ring Monday and was painfully although not seriously injured.

Senorita Montalvan had volunteered to fight the animal to please the thousands who thronged the ring. When she went in the arena the enraged bull hurled her nine feet against the fence, but she arose gamely, despite her injuries, and dashed at the bull in an attempt to kill it. The bull was getting the better of the struggle when friends of the actress jumped into the ring and carried her to safety.

Union S. S. Pic-Nic: The Union S. S. Pic-Nic last Thursday was well attended. The weather in the morning was very threatening but before dinner the sun came out, and several hundred people journeyed to Frommeyer's Grove to enjoy themselves at this annual outing. In the afternoon a base ball game was played between the married and unmarried men, resulting in a victory for the former. While the base ball lovers were enjoying the game, others were engaged in pitching horse shoes and other games.

Mrs. Virginia Sefton has sold a 75 foot lot on Broadway to Edgar A. Crouse.

A New York Roof Garden by Night: Mr. Willington, with a cast of local talent, gave another play in Walter's Theater Tuesday and Wednesday evenings before large audiences. Many persons were so well pleased with the first evening's performance that they also took in the show Wednesday evening.

The program opened with a one act comedy entitled "Betsy Baker". Miss Ruth Buehler, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Jay Wellington, and Joseph Donohue comprised the cast.

The following specialties were given:

"Any little girl that's a nice little girl is the right little girl for me"—Frank Carroll and Chorus.

Baritone Solo—"My Black Eyed Susan"—Mr. Wellington.

"Mollie Lee." (a patriotic love song), J. Calvin Hartman and chorus.

"I've got the time, the place, but it's hard to find the girl"—Edgar Miller and chorus.

All the numbers were well received by the audience.

The next was "A Honeymoon Eclipse," in which the parts were taken by Miss Elleta Spangler and Mary Kohler, and Frank Carroll in a very creditable manner.

The final number was "A New York Roof Garden by Night," in which the entire company took part. The stage setting and scenery in this part of the play were beautiful, and the costumes worn by several of the ladies were handsome.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

HOSPITALITY

TRAVELING in Nova Scotia, I have learned new lessons in that oldest of customs—hospitality.

The other day I was in a strange city and stopped my car for a moment. Out from somewhere came a man. "Could I do something for you? Is there anything I can do to help you out?" That is what we have found while motoring in this delightful Province, far from home.

We have stopped at many a simple Inn, or farm-house, and have been given keys to the place. As a matter of fact, however, few of these places have keys! You register, are given a comfortable room—but the keeper, or master of the house would feel rather badly were you to ask him for a key. You just come and go, and have no worry about people breaking in or taking from you what does not belong to them. In one place they told me they once had a jail, but for lack of patronage they tore it down!

These are hospitable people in this country. You love their simple and honest ways, their straightforward manner and genial consideration for you. I have especially loved the fisher folk. I shall never partake of fish again without thinking of this wonderful fishing country and all that the fishermen go through in order to give me my fine meal.

On Sundays, in the smaller towns especially, no one is around. They are all attending church. The church, with its beautiful white coat and lovely steeple, dominates each village and for miles away you know just the minute you see it, that you are coming to another settlement. These people in the smaller towns own few automobiles. They stick to the beloved old Dobbin and the buggy. It was a beautiful sight the past week to see dozens of horses hitched, or in most cases, unhitched, outside the church—awaiting their masters and friends.

Near Margaree, in Cape Breton Island, we noticed a fine bridge that spanned the river to another part of the village. I asked a gentleman by the roadside if that bridge led to another road to the north. "No," he replied, "that is merely a bridge over to the church. We are all Christians up here and go to church."

Perhaps these churches embody the key to the mystery of no jails about here. I have seen but one jail in the entire Province. Perhaps there are more. I have not enquired; besides, I am not interested in jails.

We attended an old fashioned—what many of us remember from youth—"barn" dance. It was another of those hospitable affairs where you were delighted and at home. Henry Ford would love this country. His cars have generously preceded so he should feel at home.

But the happiest moments we had were those spent talking with people in out-of-the-way places. If you were broke, any of them would gladly give you a meal, and be proud of the service. Hospitality is defined in its original meaning in this soothing country.

WHEN WE WERE YOUNG

We did not do such things back then

When we were young and gay,
We all were tucked in bed by ten

And up at break of day,
Piano lessons were the fad

Which kept us all shut in
While many a girl and many a lad

Scraped on the violin.

The elocution teacher came
On Thursdays every week.

Back then a youngster rose to fame
If "pieces" he could speak.

If things seemed rather dull and slow
On some one's party night,

Proud parents used to whisper low:
"Ask Willie to recite!"

Of course we got our lessons then,
That's all we had to do.

We went to school and home again,
No motor cars we knew.

There were no moving picture shows
On every city street.

And no one then had radios
With studies to compete.

Perhaps we did as children should
When we were young and small.

It may be we were very good,
But sometimes, after all,

Although our children's conduct brings
Us pangs of real dismay

I'm sure we'd do the self-same things
If we were young today.

HOME AT LAST

It took a long time to reach home. Yes, sir, it seemed to Danny Fox that he never would get there. He had only three legs to walk on, for, you remember, his right fore foot had been caught in a trap. It hurt dreadfully, and his leg had grown tired holding up the heavy trap. At length, when he did reach his front doorstep, he was ready to drop.

Now, as soon as Mrs. Fox had looked the trap over, she knew she never could force apart the strong iron jaws that held Danny Fox's poor foot, but she did think there might be some other way. The trap was old and the spring rusty, and the more Mrs. Fox looked at it, the more hopeful she became.

"Bring me a stone, Slyboots," she cried. Carefully placing the trap on the edge of the stone steps, she hit the old spring several hard blows.

Crack and the trap fell apart. Danny Fox pulled out his foot without any trouble at all.

"There, you're free," sighed Mrs. Fox, laying aside the big stone. "I hope next time you'll be more careful where you put your feet."

was too busy rubbing his sore ankle and smiling at his two small cubs, who were hugging him in their delight at seeing him once more free of the terrible trap.

Presently Mrs. Fox found some salve to rub on his foot. She felt sorry for Daddy, you may be sure. It was only in kindness she had said she hoped he would be more careful in the future where he put his feet.

"But what have we got to eat?" sighed poor, tired Danny Fox.

"You were gone so long, Daddy," answered Mrs. Fox with a chuckle, "that I went a hunting all by myself. Wait, and I'll show you what I brought home." The next minute back she trotted with a plump young chicken. "That's what I get when a-hunting I would go," she cried. "He was a careless chicken to roost in a low branched tree instead of going to bed in the Hen-house. But it's lucky for us he did."

"Where did you go?" curiously asked Danny Fox.

"Back of the Old Mill," answered Mrs. Fox. "The Miller's Boy takes poor care of his chickens. Perhaps we may be able to get another."

In a little while supper was ready and the Fox family sat down to eat, happy and contented now that Daddy Fox was home safe and sound.

Yes, foxes are devoted

And for their young provide,
And in stealing geese and chickens

They feel a certain pride.
You see, they always have been taught

That "Stolen" is the same as "Bought."

SUNDOWN STORIES

MADAM SUMMER
By Mary Graham Bonner

"I've turned the time ahead a few days," the Little Black Clock said,

"and you're going to meet Madam Summer as she holds her big, annual reception to all her friends."

"Have I a nice enough dress?" Peggy asked.

"You look fine," the Little Black Clock said.

They went down the path below the garden and then they wandered off until they came to a beautiful field in which were golden rod flowers, ox-eyed daisies, while the grass was almost golden looking.

Nearby were fields with waving wheat and barley and rye, and alfalfa and corn was growing, too. Back from the fields were woods and along the edge of the woods were shorter fir trees and some funny old stumps and some sweet ferns.

"Oh, how lovely this is," Peggy said.

"We'll walk up to those stumps," the Little Black Clock said, "and then we'll wait."

They did not wait very long. In a few minutes a beautiful person came along dressed in a golden costume. She looked as though her jewels were made of sunlight and as though her wreath of summer flowers and sweet fern would carry

Tomorrow—"Midsummer Party."

ONE RAISIN DOES NOT MAKE LOAF

Agriculture Head Declares
More Raisins Must Be Put In Bread.

"One raisin does not make a loaf of raisin bread any more than one robin makes a spring," said Dr. James W. Kellogg director, bureau of foods and chemistry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture for her which could be shared by everyone.

"Hello, Madam Summer," said the Little Black Clock, "here are John and Peggy."

"Hello, John and Peggy," said Madam Summer.

"The guests will be coming soon," she said. "But I'm glad you've come in plenty of time. Of course all my dear friends won't be able to come, but I know they'll send messages. They always do."

She sat down on a stump, and as soon as she did, the guests began to arrive.

It was quite the most unusual party John and Peggy had ever beheld, and she had so many, many friends.

The first quake, a mild one, was culture, in a statement explaining the bureau's view on what constitutes "raisin bread."

"The accepted standard for raisin bread calls for a bread being prepared by baking wheat bread dough to which has been added at least three ounces of raisins for each pound of baked product," he states.

"Recent examination of specimens of raisin bread have shown the use of artificial color, which is unlawful, and, further, that some of the loaves were deficient in raisins, there being only a few raisins spread through the loaf, making it difficult to decide whether or not the product was in fact a raisin bread."

"In connection with the work of the bureau of foods and chemistry to assure to the consumers of the commonwealth that food products shall be up to standard, the attention of all bakers is called to the fact that a certain definite amount of raisins should be used in making raisin bread if they are to continue to sell it under this designation."

California Town Shaken By Quakes
Ventura, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP).—Residents of this community were awakened at 3:27 a. m. Monday by two earth shocks which broke windows and cracked walls in several downtown buildings.

The first quake, a mild one, was followed a second later by a severe shock which lasted for one minute.

The most serious damage was reported by the owners of the Palace hotel, in the business district, where plate glass windows were broken.

The proprietor of an undertaking establishment said several lateral cracks appeared in his building, indicating the structure had swayed.

Santa Barbara reported a slight shock with no damage.

WORK IN STATE IS UNCHANGED

Road Construction Gives Jobs To Unskilled Labor; Farms Hit.

Little change in the employment situation in Pennsylvania is seen by the semi-monthly report of the bureau of employment, state department of labor and industry, released today. Road and building and construction projects are supplying work for a good percentage of unskilled labor but there remains an over-supply of such workers with the total amount of such summer contracts apparently now at its maximum.

Allentown reports numerous municipal contracts being awarded by Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton with at least 500 laborers engaged on these projects in the first city. The report from this area adds however, that so far this year only 51 permits have been issued to build homes in Allentown, the smallest number in many years. Conditions in textile industries there are dull, with a further reduction in employment in the metal trades and a surplus of unskilled labor, including large numbers of "floaters."

Erie Improves
Erie reports that "employment in Northwestern Pennsylvania has shown a further loss during the month of July but the reductions are not as great as the preceding month. In some plants improvements are being reported but they are offset by reductions in other industries."

"Reduced operating time and forces are evident in most of the iron and steel lines," the report for the Harrisburg area states. "Railroad traffic repair and maintenance has reached its peak and a large number of workers is now engaged on a good regular basis." While shop conditions are "away below normal" and 200 more men were laid off during the period, public utility work continues in good volume, employing all available skilled hands and many unskilled workers.

Johnstown reports steel industry conditions unimproved with a similar absence of improvement in the bituminous coal area. Quarries are active on sand, ballast and crushed stone for concrete mixture and public utilities are maintaining "a fair rate of improvement and repair work."

Agriculture, due to crop curtailment by the hot, dry weather, is utilizing less labor than usual throughout the state. Of this phase of the situation, the Lancaster report says, "Never had so few calls at this season and the applicants are numerous."

Making Headway
In the Philadelphia area, construction work, slow in starting, is making good headway as reflected by orders received during the last fortnight. The resumption of activity in the mills manufacturing men's wear is cited as a "bright spot" in the clothing and textile situation. The metal manufacturing industry has been moving at a slack pace. Common labor is plentiful and demand light.

Scranton estimates that $20,000,000 worth of building will be completed in northeastern Pennsylvania during the year and cites several improvements in manufacturing conditions. The Scranton Button company is expected to start its mill on full time basis and removal of the Duchesne Underwear company's equipment from Brooklyn to the plant at Old Forge will give additional employment to about 500 persons.

This bureau also reports the signing of a five-year agreement between miners and operators as being likely to result in the stabilization of the anthracite coal industry with consequent benefits to all parties. The unskilled labor situation in this section "is aggravated by the number of vacation workers who will accept work for almost no wage at all."

Pont-a-Mousson, France (AP)—This Lorraine city, heavily bombarded by Germans in the world war, has made such a complete come-back that its foundries and pipe works are operating at more than their 1914 capacity.

Staff Sergeant Willibald Nowak, leader of the 168th Infantry band, Iowa National guard, served in the German army during the World war.

Omus Peterson, Denton, Texas, county farmer, has used one grain binder 28 years, another 30.

U. S. MATADOR HAS HARD TIME

Sidney Franklin Finds Second Year In Spain Tough Sledding.

Madrid (AP)—Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn bullfighter, the only North American who has ever tried to be a professional matador in Spain, is having hard sledding.

"El Americano" was a novelty in Spain last year, and got contracts without difficulty. Bull rings all over the peninsula wanted the curious spectacle of a "Yanqui" torero.

But this summer, his second in the homeland of bullfighting, Franklin is "home folks" and must compete for contracts with the Spanish lads who grew up fighting bulls.

Sidney has so far had only half a dozen engagements this summer, but he is game. In the bullfight booking offices in Madrid and Sevilla he can be seen regularly, looking for chances to fight, and still hoping to stick long enough to get his "alternativa"—a sort of "knighting" of a bullfighter.

After that he may go to Mexico or Peru, where they like bullfighting. Or he may try, as he has often said he wants to, to introduce "bloodless bullfighting" in the United States.

Madrid (AP)—Spanish orange exports for 1929-30 were 1,086,900 tons valued at $40,759,130, most of them going to England, France, Germany and Sweden. Spain consumed only 100,000 tons.

Vienna (AP)—A committee has been formed here to select Austrian works of art for an exhibition to be shown in American cities next fall under auspices of the College Art Association of America.

Sarajevo, Yugoslavia (AP)—The minaret of one of the oldest mosques in all Bosnia, built in 1476, was blown down into a street here, smashing into fragments but injuring nobody.

BUY ISLANDS IN BAY AS RESORT

Democrats Propose Rival
Political Week-Ends
To Rapidan.

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—The shores of Chesapeake Bay perhaps are destined to share a large place in the political limelight in the days which are to come as that now held by the banks of the Rapidan.

Not to be outdone by President Hoover, democratic senators have just closed a deal for the purchase of three islands in Chesapeake Bay where they may retire over week-ends to hunt and fish and discuss politics on the side.

The islands are directly across from a point called Gallesville, on a straight line with the capital, 30 miles to the east.

The nearest way to reach the islands, however, is by auto via Annapolis, boarding the large ferry at that city which requires one and a half hours to cross the bay.

Once across the bay, 10 more miles must be traveled by automobile to a point where connections are made with motor launches to the islands.

Must Qualify

Three senators—Hawes of Missouri, Pittman of Nevada and Tydings of Maryland—head the group that bought the democratic rendezvous.

Originally it was intended to make of it a senatorial club, with members of all parties, republican, democratic and farmer labor, invited to join, but it finally ended in the democrats deciding to keep the place wholly for themselves.

All democrats in the senate will have an opportunity to enjoy the club—are expected to—but they must be democrats. That qualification will be closely watched.

Just what will go on there, no one seems to know—or rather no one seems inclined to talk about it. When news of the acquisition first came to light none of the three board of governors" was in Washington.

Whether future presidents are to be selected there or campaigns worked out remains to be seen. About the only thing that is definitely known is that from the standpoint of fishing and hunting it is said to have no equal on the bay.

Hawes Is Expert

Within three hours of Washington this probably will prove an ideal place to play over the week-end. Democratic senators will have opportunity to enjoy themselves on Saturday and Sunday and return to Washington Monday in time for the session at noon.

In Senator Hawes the democrats will find they have one of the most ardent and expert fishermen in the country to show them how to bait a hook or cast a line.

For more than half a century he has roamed the North American continent catching nearly all the well-known varieties of fresh and salt water fish.

Only a few months ago he wrote a book—"My Friend, the Black Bass"—in which he discusses fishing from "catching to hooking."

UNCLE SAM TO HAVE NEW HOME IN CHINESE PORT

Present Consulate, Now Crumbling From Age, To Give Way To $1,000,000
Structure.

Shanghai (AP)—A landmark of this Chinese port, over which the American flag has flown for 20 years, is coming down to make way for America's new consulate-general.

The structure will be the finest of its kind in all Asia and will set a new standard for United States diplomatic buildings abroad.

The site, on the Whangpoo river, Shanghai's artery to the sea, is in full view of every steamer entering or leaving the port.

Plan New Building

Destruction of the old buildings has begun and within two years there will be completed a million dollar structure which will furnish living quarters and office space for Edwin S. Cunningham, of Maryland, Tennessee, consul-general here for eleven years, and his entire staff of about a hundred.

The old buildings were erected about fifty years ago and when structures reach that age in Shanghai they are old. The soft mud brick of which they are made began to disintegrate years ago and great slabs fell away from various parts of the group until the structures looked as if they had been subjected to shell fire.

Property Valuable

The foundations sank until floors were so uneven that steps had to be constructed between some of the rooms. So frail did the main office become that steel safes housed on the second floor were removed to the basement, lest they crash through and wreck the whole interior.

But although the old buildings were disintegrating and sinking in value, the opposite was true of the ground on which they stood. The government bought the property 15 years ago, paying a third of a million dollars for it. It is now worth

Wrestling Conquers Texas In One Year

Dallas (AP)—Swarming over the state almost like a cloud of locusts, the wrestlers have "taken" Texas, all in the space of a year.

Since Gov. Dan Moody's anti-boxing edict, the popularity of the mat bouts has grown to such an extent that public agitation for the return of the glove game has become scarcely audible.

Hardly a town in the state large enough to support a paid fire department that does not have its weekly grappling cards, with at least one "champion" appearing on each program.

One reason for the rapid growth of the mat game in Texas lies in the fact that it was organized on a statewide scale with a minimum of friction among the promoters.

Mrs. Christina Heim, 103, oldest citizen of Sandusky, Ohio, was born on Friday the thirteenth.

A whole million and with Shanghai real estate values booming, it will soon reach a still higher level.

Pigs Are Poor But Expensive Golfers

Falls City, Neb. (AP)—Pigs are poor golfers, M. M. Auxier, farmer near here, has found after paying out $100 for the playfulness of his swine.

The golf course of the Falls City Elks' club was the place chosen by the porkers to frolic a few months ago. Rooting their way around the course in scores far above par, besides failing to replace divots, the pigs left tees and greens in worse condition than the worst golfing tyro.

A suit for $800 damages has just been settled by Auxier for $100. And despite the state of the hog market the offending pigs may soon be on their way to slaughter.

'STANDARD'."*

And the reason is that "extra" merit is built into each of the three great automotive products that bear the "Standard" trademark.

- (1) ESSO—containing Ethyl—knockless. Costs more to make. Sells at a 3c premium per gallon.
- (2) "Standard" Gasoline—the equal of most premium fuels. Yet it sells at usual gasoline prices.
- (3) "Standard" Motor Oil—the oilier oil.

Turns Beauty Judge
And Loses His Home

New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Costellos got along fine, Mrs. Paul Costello said Tuesday in filing suit for separation, until Mr. Costello acted as a judge in a bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City. Then his visits home became "spasmodic" and finally he ceased to come home at all.

She was awarded $50 a week temporary alimony. The Costellos were married in Buffalo, May 22, 1919, and have a son, Paul, Jr., aged 9.

Walks Across River;
Lowest In 20 Years

York, Aug. 7 (AP)—To such ignominy has the drought reduced the mighty Susquehanna river that William M. Shenberger, of this city, was able to walk across at Long Level.

Shenberger said that the heat and the dust made his walk uncomfortable.

ILL FOR YEARS; KONJOLA MADE QUICK RESCUE

"Konjola Is Wonderful", Says
Lady Who Is Glad To Tell
What New Medicine Did.

MRS. DOLLY RIZER

Results are what count, and Konjola can be counted on for results even though all medicines and treatments have failed. Another proof of this is found in the experiences of Mrs. Dolly Rizer, 323 Wayne street, Washington, Pa., who says:

"Konjola is wonderful! I suffered from stomach trouble for twenty years, and try as I would, I could find nothing to relieve me. My food lay undigested in my stomach, causing gas, bloating and pain. I am free from pain and my appetite is good, and I advise anyone suffering as I did to give Konjola a chance."

Konjola does work swiftly. One does not have long to wait for results, but a complete treatment of from six to eight bottles is highly recommended.

Konjola is sold in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, at Murphy's Cut Rate drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Tree-Sitter Fatally Hurt In Kentucky

Ashland, Ky., Aug. 7 (AP)—A fall that cost him his life ended Neilson McIntosh's tree sitting here today after he had been up 496 hours. The lad, who is 16 years old, slipped as he leaned forward to pull up his lunch and toppled forty-five feet to the ground. His neck was broken. He was taken to a hospital, where he died at 12:40 p. m. Young McIntosh had announced that he would come down at 4 p. m. Wednesday after 500 hours in the tree.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MAJESTIC

Among the many features of "The Arizona Kid," the Fox Movietone Western offering with Warner Baxter in the title role which comes to the Majestic theatre on Friday and Saturday, is the fact that it has no "theme songs." Both Baxter and Mona Maris, the leading lady, sing during the production but their songs are old-world Spanish melodies, love songs that probably were composed long before Columbus ventured westward and that have a charm all their own.

In the realistic dance-hall sequences, several popular tunes of the eighties are sung in keeping with the period.

LITTLE REUNION

A number of persons from Gettysburg and vicinity attended the reunion of the Little family at Hershey park, Sunday. Residents of York Springs and Littlestown were also represented.

RIDER REUNION

The Rider family will hold its second annual reunion at Hershey park, near Seven Stars, August 31, it was announced today.

HOW ONE WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS OF FAT

Lost Her Double Chin
Lost Her Prominent Hips
Lost Her Sluggishness
Gained Physical Vigor
Gained in Vivaciousness
Gained a Shapely Figure

If you're fat—remove the cause! KRUSCHEN SALTS contain the 6 mineral salts your body organs, glands and nerves must have to function properly.

When your vital organs fail to perform their work correctly—your bowels and kidneys can't throw off that waste material—before you realize it—you're growing hideously fat!

Take half a teaspoonful of KRUSCHEN SALTS in a glass of hot water every morning—exercise regularly—do not over-eat and—in 3 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. KRUSCHEN will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get an 85c bottle of KRUSCHEN SALTS at People's Drug Store (lasts 4 weeks). If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—your money gladly returned.

Modern Method Lift Them Out CORN Callouses Go Too

The safest and real modern way to remove corns, root and all—out to stay is soak them every night for 3 or 4 nights in an invigorating, stimulating Radox Footbath.

Then put on modish shoes again, walk and dance with greatest comfort because there's nothing left to ache. No pain, no trouble.

Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layer of corn, each night penetrating further and further thru the pores, carrying the salts to actual root of corn, so loosening it that it comes right out. Nothing like healthy, free from corn feet to assure happy days! Get a package of Radox at People's Drug Store or any drugstore.
